Congressional.

WASHINGTON, October 18.—The statu of the Louisiana Senatorial question at adjournment yesterday was, first, Thur-man's motion to seat Spofford; following this, but taking precedence when a vote is reached, is the motion of Mitchell to refer the credentials to the Committee on Privileges and Elections. Mr. Ed-munds' motion to discharge the Com-mittee on Privileges and Elections from the further consideration of Kellogg's credentials, is a separate question.

Should Mitchell's substitute for Thurman's motion prevail, Spofford will go to the committee; should Edmunds' motion prevail, it will bring Kellogg's credentials before the Sepate while Spofford's are before the committee. Should, however, Mitchell's substitute be defeated and Thurman's original resolution be adopted, the vote will admit Spofford's without regard to Kellogg's credentials.

ators seem to be setting parliamentary traps for each other and the contest will be long.

The Obelisk Lost.

ous, retarding or discontinuing picking Rust is reported throughout the belt, LONDON, Oct. 18.-The steamer Olga at Falmouth reports was compelled to abandon the Cleopatra Obellisk off Cape Finistere Sunday night during a but in few places causing serious dam-age. The caterpillar has done less damage than was feared, the most seritremendous gale. The crew on the craft which contained the Obelisk was ous losses being in Texas and Louisiana. In the more northern States of transferred to the Olga, but not until the Olga had lost her second mate and the belt they will accomplish quite as much benefit as injury, by reducing the redundant growth of foliage and five hands in her endeavers to rescue hastening the maturity of fruitage. Picking has progressed rapidly in the London, October 18 .- M. Dixon, en gineer, who designed the caisson in which the Egyptian obelisk is being towed to England and which the cap-tain of the Olga was compelled to aban-don on Sanday night off cape Finistere during the storm does not think the ob elisk necessarily lost. He expects th caisson will drift seaward and be picked

The captain of the Olga however, fears that the caisson was in a hopeless condition when abandoned.

London, October 18 .- A special despatch from Vienna to the Times says hat Mukhtar Pasha's defeat leaves the cussians free to act on the wings and further operations by Ismail Igdyr are out of the question and if he does not retreat promptly he may share the fate of Mouktar Pasha's old division.

The Russian force at Areahan which has been kept in check by Mourktar Pasha's position rather than by any imn ediate opposing force will not remain idle any longer. Thus with one blow all advantages gained by the Turks during the summer have disappeared, and unless weather and extreme diffi-culty of supplying the Russian army interfere, a march on Erzeroum may be tried again this year.

A London official dispatch from Mukhtar Pasha, dated Kars, October 15th, says: "Our centre after being exposed for four hours to overwhelm-"Our centre after being ing cannonade and incessant assaults nands of th The Russians then occupied all the strategical points in the direction of Kars, to which place we withdrew with one division, to prepare our revenge Another division, including corps commanded by Rachid Omar, Kiazim Moussa and Chevket Pasha, continues to hold its positions on Kara Dagh. Note -This is doubtless the portion of Mukhtar Pasha's force, which according to later Russian telegrams, was com-pelled to surrender. Mukhtar Pasha says his loss is only about eight lundred hors de combat, which is obviously untrue. He claims a regiment and a half of Russian cavalry and four battalion of infantry were totally destroyed. Mukhtar attributes his defeat to Russian reinforcements, and the fact that they were able to place in position two hundred guns, served by skilled artil-

Movements of the Parties. Paris, Oct. 18.—The left is boastful and threatening. The great question is, what will the present ministry do and above all, what will Marshal Mc-Mahon de. Rumors relative to their intentions vary continually. The latest are to the effect that the Ministers are inclined to resign, but it is added that the Marshals private advisors hold that Marshal cannot yield to the dictates of the Democracy without breaking his repeated pledges, but that he will accept the left centre if it severs itself from the rest of the left. It is not surprising considering the dangerous counsels offered to the Marthat vague remorse of coup de, ettail circulate, and that for two business has slackened, and the situa-tion instead of improving, seems be-coming more gloomy and disquieting. Paris, October 18.—The Dix Neuvienne Siecle announces that all republican deputies elect will be invited t come to the capital to hold a meeting to consider the policy of the party.

The Albion Bank Not Broke. WASHINGTON, D. C., October 18 .-The reported failure of the Albion print works is untrue, a bank officer only blundered this time. The misun-derstanding between the Empire Transportation Company and the Pennsylva-nia railroad has been arranged, by the latter paying two and a half million dollars cash on account of purchase.

THE STATE FAIR.

While we are penning these lines the incidents and events of the "great day" of the Fair, which render the present the grandest and most successful one ever held in the State, are transpiring at the Fair Grounds, witnessed and parat the Fair Grounds, witnessed and participated in by thousands and tens of thousands of the citizens from every part of our own State and many from Madame is backed by several heavy part of our own State and many from others of our sister States. We are glad and rejoice as North Carolinians, at the result of the continued, intelligent and harmonious efforts of the officers and the Executive Committee of the Agrieutural Society, aided by the co-operation of a large number of the leading citizens of the State, in the glorious spectacle witnessed to-day at the Fair Ground.

And now, what has been done may be done again. The same efforts next year will produce alike result. Let the official body of the Society that may be chosen this week, consider that the foundation is laid, and that now it must be built upon, year after year, until the Association and the annual exhibition are completed into a structure that the winds of accident and the storms of ignorance and prejudice may beat upon i

There is one remarkable feature in the present exhibition that shows a healthy improvement over most former ones; there is less "padding," that is accumulating a large number of contributions of no merit, not so much, if at all, for the purpose of competition as for show-to fill up. Nearly all the articles this year, in every department, are meritorious, and are bona fide en tries for competition for the premiums offered. Some of the departments are not so full—that is there are not so many pieces-as we have seen on former ocpieces—as we have seen on former oc-casions, but those present are mostly of 5000 votes to defeat McMahon, Demoa high order of merit, and while all can crat, for Congress. Last year Bell car-present season are entitled to the thanks and congratulations of the entire State and have abundant ground for a feeling of satisfaction themselves, at the evidences of the success of the very laborious efforts, and we have no doubt this result this year will inspire them to continue their effort for the future and wil also challenge and secure the co-operation of many who may have been, heretofore, lukewarm in this very im portant work.

How a Millionaire Banker's Daughter Bounded into So-ciety.

The California fashionable world had a brilliant sensation recently in a grand entertainment at the country mansion of D. O. Mills, the millionaire banker, to celebrate the entree into society of his only daughter. Over one hundred mil lion's worth of property was represented at the party, and diamonds to the value of over two millions flashed from the ornaments of the women. A gentleman who was present says that "diamonds sparkled like dew, and the treasures of the Nizam at Golconda the yellow label, on which his name is printed on the yellow label, on which his name is printed, the date when his subscription will expire. Subscribers desiring to renew will do so in time and avoid losing any copy of their paper. Any subscriber failing to receive a copy of his paper will confer a favor by notifying this office.

The Alliant at officient were there in all their dazzling glory. Our millionaires, explains a local paper, are without exception, unostentatious. With fortunes which European princes never dreamed of possessing, their every day life is as plain as an American civizon's should be It is only when every day life is as plain as an American citizen's should be. It is only when some event like the entree of Miss Mills into the fashionable world calls them together that there is any glimpse at the splendor of their riches. Just as the Queen's levee at St. James calls forth he insignia, jewels, and tiaras of her subjects, so an event of this nature in our own country brings out the magniticent equipages and diamonds of our ordinarily plain though enormously wealthy families. The boast of this countless wealth were a poor one aside from the fact that our rising generation represents as much refinement, taste and delicacy as riches. Our educational advantages are equal to those enjoyed by any State in the Union, and Californians are the first people in the world to add foreign travel to their home advantages The gathering at Milbrae will long be remembered by those who had the honor to be there. While it represents incalculable wealth, it was equally conspicuous for beauty, grace, learning and refinement. Looking back twenty-eight years in the history of our State, and comparing 1849 with 1877, we may indeed be proud of the stride we have made, and look forward to California as

San Francisco Corre pondence Boston Jour-nal. I In one of the most fashionable and respectable quarters in this city, near Market street, stands a large and ele-gant looking house. The hundreds of gant looking house. The hundreds of people who daily pass think it is a private residence, little dreaming that it is a female gambling institution, as it is, and in which thousands of dollars not unfrequently change hands nightly. It is patronized by men and women who belong to the wealthy class, and who move in aristocratic circles. The manager of this institution is a woman, who came here from St. Louis about a vear ago. At one time she figured in Washington as a lobbyist. She is a lovely brunette, of queenely appearance, and this abode you are generally welcomed by Madame in a back parlor, brilliantly lighted and handsomely furnished, into which you have been ushered by the whole your wind has answered your Va. The walls are adorned with beautiful pictures, and articles of virtu are to be seen profusion. In this apartment, night after night, into the wee sma' hours. are to be found leading merchants and stock brokers with the wives of some of their business associates, all engaged in play, which is only interrupted between the hours of 12 and 1 o'clock by a lunch of cake and wine. The principal games played by these fashionable gamblers are faro, Boston and whist. Occasionally roulette and rouge et noir are played. The dealer at the faro table is beautiful looking blonde, who passe for the stepdaughter of Madame the manager. She generally dresses in a white lace wrapper, with a lustrons diamond ring sparkling from an ex-tremely white and delicately shaped hand. capitalists of this city. A Woman Abducted in St.

St. Louis, Mo., Oct. 7 .- A consider ole sensation has been created here by the mysterious disappearance of Cora Austin, a trapezist, tolerably well known throughout the various cities of the country, and who at the time of her disappearance was playing an en-gagement at the Globe Theatre, in St. uis. Friday afternoon about 4 o'clock she was with her husband at the hote where they boarded, and at that hour left for the purpose of going to the clobe Theatre. She has not been seen since, and there are circumstances conected with the case which indicate foul play. It appears on the night of the day she disappeared, a vehicle con-taining two men and a woman, the last creaming for help, was driven furiousl dong Grand-avenue, in the western imits of the city, and, despite the ef-forts of the Police to overtake it, the ecupants succeeded by reason of the nse darkness that prevailed, in Laking good their escape. There is a plausible theory that this vehicle con ained Cora Austin, and that she was eing abducted for foul purposes. The husband is nearly frantic over his wife's lisappearance, and believes she ha been taken away and murdered. Chief of Police McDonough has taken the matter in hand, and has detectives busy in endeavoring to selve the mystery.

A Civilized Hermit.

(From the Kingston Freeman.) On the Hurley Mountain, as it is loon the Hurley Mountain, as it is lo-cally known, between Marbletown and Shokan, just east of Bishop's Falls and near the property of Jacob Irwin, some distance from the highway, in an abandoned blue-stone quarry, there is a roughly-built house, whose only floer is the smooth rock of the quarry, and in it lives a man named Matthew Ten Eyck Keator, a bachelor of fifty years of age or thereshout, without the company of or thereabout, without the company of or thereabout, without the company of any living thing, except a number of chickens. Mr. Keator is not a soured misanthrope who has been jilted by some woman, or received any other fancied wrongs at the hands of hisfellow creatures, but is a man of warm and kindly feelings for all his neighbors and acquaintances, and whom he entertains in the most hospitable manner whenever the most hospitable manner whenever they may see fit to visit his modest de main. He neither wears an uncivilized costume nor an unkempt beard, nor does he subsist on roots and herbs, but does he subsist on roots and herbs, but the kindly fruits of the earth he enjoys in their season, and he earns them, as well as his bread, by the sweat of his brow. His home is as clean as though presided over by a woman possessed with a neat devil; his cooking is celebrated among the housewives in all the regions round for its deliciousness, and his peaches are the admiration and envi of which there are many, for there, in that rocky soil, he has now in full bearing 200 peach trees, which produce the most luscious fruit, and during the coming year his orchard will be in-creased by 400 more fruit-bearing trees of the same kind. Mr. Keator has ived alone for the past twelve years, doing his own housework as well as cultivating his small and stony farm unaided. His idiosyncrasy consists in be ing more fond or his own company than that of other people and his desire to remain silent when he has nothing particular to say.

It is the most perfect and economical in use. The Boiler is of new design, being vertical, yet all the heating surface is ontirely covered with water, thus preventing the fire from destroying the tubes as is the case, in a few years, in all upright tubular boilers in which the fire passes through the tubes above the water line, soon destroying the exposed end of the tubes causing them to leak.

The Great Fair of 1877

THE THIRD DAY

FIFTEEN THOUSAND PEOPLE IN ATTENDANCE.

A TRIUMPHANT SUCCESS!

COVERNOR HAMPTON'S ORATION SCENES AND INCIDENTS.

"We Ne'er Shall look Upon it Like Again."

Long as it has been with us, long as we have reveled in the luxury of its wondrous benefits, we were yet unpre-pared for its coming and departure, and the triumphant success of the seventeenth annual exposition of the North Carolina Agricultural Society on yesterday, the third day. It was estimated that fifteen thousand people participated, directly or indirectly, in the ceremonies of the day; and so perfect was every arrangement that in the assembling of the vast multitude not a single conflict of authority and no mistakes occurred. Very fortunately every emergency was very carefully provided for, and the thousands of visitors found the occasion one of most absorbing in-

The judges' stand, where the noble Hampton addressed the people of our commonwealth, was neatly decorated with the national colors, while the grand stand was filled to overflowing with the national colors, while the grand stand was filled to overflowing. with an array of beauty—the lovely women and gallant men of the Old North State—awaited the great event of

THE ORATION OF GOV. HAMPTON. While waiting for the address of the distinguished orator the cadets of the Bingham School entertained the immense audience with a skirmish drill, which lasted for one hour. To say that it was perfect is hardly doing the boys justice. It was indeed corfect and won. justice. It was indeed perfect, and won the high encomiums of the vast multitude. Governors Hampton and Vance made special mention of the various manœuvres and said they would do credit to veterans.

Maj. Robert Bingham may feel proud of his corps of cadets, and deservedly so, while the people of North Carolina behalf of education.

The skirmish drill over, the Salem Cornet Band played a national air, the last strains of which had scarcely died away when Governor Vance warned by the impatient murmurs of the vast throng in the grand stand, and in front of that structure, that anything like delay or monotony would not be stepped to the front of the judges' plause with which he was greeted had

FELLOW COUNTRYMEN: It is made my pleasing duty to-day, as Governor of the State of North Carolina, to introduce to your personal acquaintance, as he has long been known to your esteem and admiration, His Excellency, Wade Hampton, the honored Governor of our Southern sister, South Carolina.

[Great applause.]
I could could use many words my countrymen, in telling you why he is worthy of our regard, but eulogy has its limits. And the sum and substance of it all would be, that he is at once a chivalrous soldier, an incorruptibl statesman, a gallant christian gentle-man, the deliverer of his native State, and preserver of its civilization. [Prolonged applause.] In your behalf la-dies and gentlemen, I bid him welcome to the homes as he has long been to the to hearts of the people of North Caro-

olina. [Applause.]
Governor Hampton said: MY FRIENDS OF NORTH CAROLINAdiffer with Governor Vance in one par-ticular, for I believe every man and woman in North Carolina is present to-day. It would take the voice of a Stento to be heard on this occasion. More than once have I been called upon to hear agricultural addresses at our annual fairs, and I have had the misfortune to make them myself, and I must say that to the listener and speaker have always found them great borss. I do not intend to inflict this bore upon North Carolina—an agricultural address to-day. When your society sent a delegation to Columbia to ask me to come here, headed by one of North Car-oiua's gallant sons—Gen. James M. Leach, he said he was going to stay until I consented to come. I did not intend to come here to-day to inflict upon those into whose eyes I had looked when in battle, an agricultural address. I came to grasp them by the hand. I have not forgotten them. The soldiers of North Carolina are as close to my heart as ever. * * There were no better soldiers in the late war than the soldiers of North Carolina. I always placed them where danger was the thickest, for I knew I could trust the old tarheel These are some of the mem ries that bind me to the old North State. Then there are other associations. It was my good fortune to command North Carolina men during the late war. I had the honor to fight the last battle in sight of this very spot where I am speaking now. It was here that I sheathed my sword. That sword was never stained by cowardice or wrong. Though I wielded that sword as long as I could by what I deemed right, since its surrender I have never violated the obligation resting upon me as a citizen of the Union.

I told the citizens of Illinois a few weeks ago that I fought the enemy as long as I could fight, and would be fighting them now under the same circumstances. When the armies of the Confederate States surrendered it was done in good faith. Our people have no double tongue. I will fight an open enemy, but not a secret foe. We fought from a conviction of duty, while others fought to restore the Union. The present Constitution as amended was adopted without our consent. I propose to take the Constitution of the United States, with the amendments, Brockenborough and abide by it strictly. [Applause.] Well, my friends, this is a platform Gray, upon which all can stand. We can still !

honor to the memory of the brave men who fought for us, and yet never violate the Constitution of the United States. I had rather the tongue should cleave to the roof of my mouth, or my right hand forget its cunning, than I should forget the men with whom I taught in battle.

ry, and we are citizens of that country. To have all our resources, &c., developed we must have peace. We have felt the want of good government in my own State, where misrule has prevailed for years past. * * * Peace is essential in any portion of this country. My idea is that we should have as little to do with politics as possible. We intend (in South Carolina) to devote much to (in South Carolina) to devote much to our material interests.

To every class of people who desire to make our State their home do we extend a hearty welcome. We do not ask whether he is a Republicann or a Democrat. We simply desire that he shall obey the laws and constitution of the United States. By this means you will have peace. Immigration will flow into your noble old Commonwealth.

* * You Commonwealth. * * * You will hear the hum of the loom, and the sound of the anvil. The resources of your State will be fully developed. I do not hesitate to say to you, men of the South, that by strict attention to your farming pursuits that you will at no distant day exercise a controlling influence in the affairs of the nation. I good of the whole country. It depends on the people of the South, one which God and nature has marked out for them. If they will follow the course marked by our ancestors, peace and prosperity will come. * * * We do not ask you to blot out the sad memory of the past. I did not come here to make a long address. (Go on here to make a long address. (Go on said a thousand tongues.) I only want to say a few words to those who followed me in the late war. The first and second regiments of North Carolina troops, who fought with so much gallantry were not with me in this State when the convention between Generals Johnston and Sherman had agreed upon terms of surrender, and they may like ston and Sherman had agreed upon terms of surrender, and they may like to know the fate of the old first brigade to which they once belonged. The men of this command said that they would would not surrender. They didn't flee from an enemy, but from a surrender. On my return to camp I sent a courier to overtake them. They were found near Company Shops. I had passed passed through trying scenes, had seen those who were nearer to me than my own life fall in battle—but never throughout the whole war did I witness a scene which filled my heart with so much sorrow. The sun was just setting behind the tree-tops when the men who had followed me in many a hard-fought battle were called on to surrender. The sabres were hanging idly in the scobbards, the men sat knowing not what to aay or dc. I said to them: "You followed me through the glories and trials of the war; you were never defeated. I am zoing; I am turning my face westward, but I come to say to you now, surrender these arms that have nev er been disgraced." I saw tears come into the eyes of those moved to weeping. Many came forward and shook hands with me for the last time. The tear unbidden came to my eye, but we surrendered, and in good faith. These are some of the memories that tie me to the past—that tie me to the old North State. The life of a private in the late war was as dear to me as that of any officer in my command. * * *

When all else was lost, I knew that I I hope that every blessing may be bestowed upon you. * * * Thanking you for your attention I must aloos, by you for your attention I must sloor, by saying that I shall never forget the men of old North Carolina. [Applause]. Loud calls were made for Vance.

The Governor approached the front of the platform and said that a citizen of New York had prepared and sent two ocquets—one for each of the Governors present. This alone showed the good feeling existing between the North rnd the South. I now present to Gov. Hampton one of the beautiful boquets. I must not forget to say, my ountrymen, that I am in the ha telegraphing to the Governor of South arolina very often, &c. (Applause.)
